ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting of the Society was held Tuesday Evening, May 21, 1878, in the Second Presbyterian Church, Hon. Henry C. Murphy, First Vice-President, being in the chair. The Report for the past year was read by the Rev. Dr. A. P. Putnam, after which the Chairman introduced the Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs, who read a paper on "Sir Walter Raleigh." There was a very large attendance of members.

After the meeting a reception was given to Dr. Storrs by Jeremiah P. Robinson, Esq., at his house on Montague Terrace. Many active and earnest friends of the Society were present by invitation of the cordial and generous host, and the occasion was a very delightful one.

Since the accompanying Report was sent to press, the Building Committee has adopted a plan, and it only remains now to erect the long-contemplated edifice.

The Committee on Field Meetings, consisting of Rev. Dr. C. H. Hull, Chairman, A. J. Spooner, Elias Lewis, Jr., Rev. Dr. A. P. Putnam, A. Augustus Low, and Eugene F. Beecher, Secretary, made their first excursion on Friday, June 21, 1878; and were accompanied by Prof. Charles E. West, Prof. George W. Plympton, Rev. Dr. Henry J. Van Dyke, and John P. Cranford, all members of the Society. The party proceeded to Roslyn, where they were met by several citizens of the place, who extended to them a generous hospitality. It was deemed fitting that the first of these visits to various parts of our island, should be made to the beautiful summer home and grave of William Cullen Bryant, who was a Councillor of our Society. The day was very fine and the visit one long to be pleasantly remembered by those who participated in it.

REPORT
OF THE
BOARD OF DIRECTORS
OF THE
LONG ISLAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

PRESENTED MAY 21, 1878.

The most interesting and important feature of the history of the Society, during the past year, has been the impulse that was given in the Autumn to the New Building enterprise. The subscriptions had amounted to the sum of a hundred thousand dollars immediately after the course of lectures for the season had begun. A Committee was appointed, charged with the labor of procuring and examining plans and specifications, and reporting to the Board what sort of an edifice in their judgment would best answer the needs of the institution, and at the same time prove a fitting architectural adornment of the city. It was fondly hoped and expected that before now a plan would be decided upon, and the ground broken. But the work of the Committee, it was readily discovered, was not so easy a task as some had supposed. A large number of architects entered the lists to compete for the prize. Each one's plans had its merits, and also its disadvantages. Very naturally a marked diversity of opinion arose among the members in consequence, and no little time was required to harmonize their views. A further delay was occasioned by the circumstance that Mr. Post, the favored competitor, was called upon to change or modify his own plan to a very considerable extent, and also by the circumstance, that, soon afterward, he was obliged to visit the South. However, the suggested alterations have been duly made and submitted, the Committee are doing all they can to expedite the business committed to their hands, and the days surely cannot be many before the results of their earnest and protracted deliberations will visibly appear. A few weeks' or months' delay will hardly be regretted, if only thereby the building that is to be shall all the more approve itself to the critical taste of the community, and fulfil the proper ends and objects of its erection.

To the interest and enthusiasm which were created among our citizens by the initiation of this enterprise must be attributed mainly the large increase of membership which the present Report has to record. The net gain for 1876-77 was seventy, one hundred and fifty-four new names having been added, and eighty-four having been withdrawn. During 1877-78 there has been an accession of one hundred and twenty-four annual subscribers and forty-one life members, while only forty-two names have been dropped; there being thus a net gain of one hundred and twenty-three, or fifty-three more than last year. The loss, now as then, has been chiefly due to removals from the city or neighborhood, but to some extent it has been owing to the continued severity of the times, which compels so many families to retrench to the utmost the varied expenses of life.

But, besides the forty-two members who, for these or other reasons, have voluntarily surrendered their connection with the Society, there have been not less than sixteen of our number who have deceased during the year. The bare mention of their names is quite enough to remind us how much of worth and usefulness has thus been taken out of the social, business, professional and religious life of Brooklyn: William M. Robbins, George B. Granniss, Rev. David Inglis, D.D., Thomas Hunt, Sidney Green, Brewster Valentine, John B. Norris, Sylvester Hondlow, William S. Dunham, George W. Uhler, Nicholas Saltus, Charles B. Loomis, William J. Coffin, Mrs. Day O. Kellogg, John Halsey, and Edward Dodge.

It has been suggested that the fee for life membership be raised from $50 to $75, or even to $100, and it is not unlikely that this matter will be duly considered and acted upon by the Board at no distant day. At the beginning of the present year, the last Annual Report was printed, giving a list of all who were members at the 1st of January. No previous Report had been published since 1869. The Librarian has been instructed to make out a condensed record of the history of the Society for the interregnum, and, if the Board shall hereafter decide to issue such a document, Mr. Hannah's notes will doubtless be ready for the purpose in good time.

The Executive Committee have endeavored to secure for the members of the Society as interesting, instructive, varied and successful a course of lectures, for the Winter and Spring, as the limited means placed at their disposal would allow. They would flatter themselves that their efforts have not been in vain. At these semi-monthly meetings, held, with one exception, at the Second Presbyterian Church, corner of Clinton and Fulton Streets, the attendance has been unusually large, and in some cases it has been quite enough to test the full capacity of the edifice. We present here a list of the names of the lecturers, with dates and subjects:

1. Nov. 13, 1877. Hon. George B. Loring. "The People and their Books."
2. Dec. 18, 1877. Hon. Edward L. Pierce. "The Private Life and Literary Friendships of Charles Sumner."
3. Dec. 21, 1877. Mr. W. W. Story. "The Progress of Art."
4. Jan. 8, 1878. Col. John Ward. "The Continental Congress Before the Declaration of Independence."
5. Jan. 22, 1878. Rev. Wm. A. Leonard. "Some Personal Impressions of Cuba."
6. Feb. 12, 1878. Hon. Paul A. Chadbourne. "Iceland and the Icelanders."
7. Feb. 26, 1878. Mr. George Ticknor Curtis. "Curious History of the Treaty of Peace which recognized the Independence of this Nation."

8. March 26, 1878. Prof. J. Lewis Diman. "Sir Harry Vane, the Younger."
9. April 9, 1878. Prof. Charles F. Chandler. At the Brooklyn Atheneum. "The History of the Photographie Art."
10. April 23, 1878. Prof. H. Carrington Bolton. "Alchemy, the Cradle of Chemistry."
11. May 7, 1878. James T. Fields, LL. D. "Literary and Artistic Life in London Thirty Years Ago."
12. May 21, 1878. Rev. R. S. Storrs, D. D. "Sir Walter Raleigh."

Through the energetic offices of Mr. A. Augustus Low, Chairman of the Reception Committee, arrangements were made and carried into execution for the social entertainment, at the residences of some of our citizens, of such of the lecturers, especially, as came from a distance and were strangers in Brooklyn. Messrs. S. B. Chittenden, Jr., E. H. R. Lyman, H. C. Murphy and John S. Ward, and Rev. Dr. Schenck, kindly welcomed to their homes, respectively, Messrs. Loring, Pierce, Chadbourne, Curtis and Fields—each host inviting, also, such officers or members of the Society, or such of his personal friends outside of the Society, as he himself might see fit. In each and every case the choice and the number of the guests have rested, of course, with those who were generous to open their houses for these purposes, the simple object being to ensure to certain distinguished visitors, from near or afar, the courtesies and hospitalities appropriate to the circumstances. These Receptions, like the Annual Dinner, which was held on the 6th of February and was under the efficient management of several of the Members' Committee, were pleasant and enjoyable occasions. The social element, which is thus connected with the institution, has been productive of much good already, and may well be utilized to greater good in time to come. What is called the Directors' Dinner is no longer confined exclusively, as at the outset, to those who are officers of the Society. Now that it is no more a merely tentative affair, but a sort of established custom, it is believed that it may be still enlarged in spirit and scope, and be made to assume a popular form, and to command a general interest—the whole expense, as heretofore, being defrayed by private individuals, or, actual participants.

At the suggestion of one of the Young Men's Committee, a series of ten photographs has been taken of the Rooms of the Society, in the Hamilton Buildings, by Mr. B. J. Smith, who, as an expert in this special line of his profession, has been very successful in the particular task that was thus assigned to him. These interior views will be still more interesting and valuable, when, by and by, the scenes which are here so faithfully delineated shall have been exchanged for others in the new prospective edifice; and such of the members as may desire to possess them can procure copies of Mr. Hannah at $5.00 for the set.

Very little money has been expended for books during the year. A suggestion was made at one of the later meetings of the Executive Committee, that, if the sum of $500, or even less, could be devoted to the purchase of some of the recent important publications, it would be a great advantage to us, by introducing a fresh element into our Library and by attracting a larger number of visitors to the Rooms; but it was found that no funds were available, at present, for this purpose. No one, who has the requisite means at his disposal, could confer a higher or more acceptable benefit upon the institution, just at this time, than by giving to it some such amount as has been named, in order to supply the pressing need we have hinted at.

Among the gifts which have been made to swell the collections of the Society, are 330 volumes and 545 pamphlets, presented by as many as 161 different parties. The list is too long to be enumerated in this connection, but will be given to the members in the usual printed form. We may be permitted to express our grateful obligations, particularly, to the Brooklyn Eagle, the Brooklyn Union-Argus, and the Brooklyn Times, for files of those papers for the last year; and to various departments of the Government at Washington, to the States of New York and Vermont, to Hon. S. B. Chittenden, to the Rev. Drs. Storrs and Farley, and to Mr. Charles F. Wingate, and others, for the large number of useful publications which each and all of them have presented. Our thanks are due and are given to those, also, who have contributed a variety of manuscripts and autographs, mementos and curiosities, to enrich the stores of the Society.

The volume which was announced in the last Report, and which is to be entitled "The Campaign of 1776, in and around New York and Brooklyn," has been delayed by unavoidable causes, but is expected to appear next month. Its accomplished author, Mr. H. P. Johnston, is sparing no pains to make it a work of real merit and importance in the department of American Historical Literature. The interest that is felt in it, is partially indicated in the fact that as many as 225 copies have already been subscribed for; nor can it be doubted that the larger part of the edition will be promptly sold as soon as it is issued. Various accounts have been previously given of the nature and contents of this forthcoming publication of the Society, and members who wish to avail themselves of it are again reminded of the desirableness of entering their names, for the purpose, at an early day. It should, indeed, find a place in every family, as in every public library, in our city.

It is gratifying to state, that, under the continued earnest and faithful care and zeal of Mr. Elias Lewis, Jr., the interest in the Museum of Natural History has steadily increased, and a general desire has been awakened to render as complete as possible the collection of local specimens in that department. A full list of the contributions which have been made under this head, during the year, will be given in connection with that which pertains more strictly to the Library itself. It embraces 200 species of land and marine plants, collected by the late W. S. Dunham, Esq., and presented by his widow; one case of shells and corals, collected by the late Mrs. Day O. Kellogg, and presented by Miss Kellogg; three cases of minerals, with shells and corals, archæological specimens and curiosities, collected by the late Mrs. Richards, and presented by Mrs. James P. Kirkwood ; a Chippewa Indian Canoe, from W. Gould Levison ; two very interesting Indian heads, from Ernest Morris, who brought them from the upper Tapajos River, in South America ; a large variety of plants, seeds, and cones, with jars of reptiles, from E. S. Miller, of Wading River, Long Island ; 163 photographs of dwellings, public buildings, rocks, trees, scenery, &c., from D. B. Brainerd, A. R. Young, and E. Lewis, Jr.—together with a great assortment, from numerous friends beside, of spears and arrows, relics and fossils, and other objects illustrative of the mineral, vegetable or animal kingdom.

Thankful acknowledgments are herewith made to each and all who have favored the Society with these very welcome and instructive gifts ; and surely not the less to Mr. Lewis, who, as the Chairman of the Natural History Committee, and Superintendent of the Museum, still devotes freely so much of his time, thought, and labor, to the classification, arrangement and labelling of these growing accumulations, and to the watchful guardianship of what must be, in the course of years, a most attractive and notable feature of this institution and its riches.

These gathered and still increasing stores, are, to a large extent, local in their origin and character, and they serve as a very significant hint of what may yet be done, in similar directions, within the region over which our Society may claim a most natural and legitimate jurisdiction for research and discovery. To say nothing of neighboring shores and districts, how much there is, connected with the earliest settlements through the length and breadth of our own island, that still awaits the patient investigations of the explorer ! The old families, the ancient landmarks, the battle-fields and burial-places of by-gone days, and all the rude and decaying memorials and records of generations that are past—how little, comparatively, they have as yet unfolded to us the story it is theirs to tell ! The marvellous growth and development of the great commercial centre of the Western world, whose costly and countless argosies, of all nations, enter our waters, passing and repassing through the majestic gateways which nature or art has constructed for us—what a history is here ! The diversified scenery that widens out around us on every side, with its rivers that run from the mountains to the sea, its hills and plains, woods and marshes, bays and islands, rock, sand, and marl—what a school is this for the votaries of Geology, Mineralogy, Botany, Entomology, and other branches of physical science ! No institution of the kind in the country is more favorably situated for the pursuits which properly belong to it, than is the Long Island Historical Society. All about us, far and near, are the objects and places that invite the students of natural history, and the students of human history ; those who would read what has been traced on the monuments and vestiges which men have built or bequeathed, and those who would read the elder books that hold the secrets of the earth and the sea. What vaster knowledge and nobler influences might thence be brought to elevate our common life, and what rare and rich contributions, also, to fill the cabinets of our museums ! To promote this end a Committee has been appointed to arrange for field excursions each year, with the view of visiting spots of historic interest or renown within a reasonable distance, and of making a better acquaintance with the natural features, resources and productions of the Island, and of its surroundings, so far as these may justly come within the province of the Society. It is hoped that these occasions will be, sooner or later, participated in by a very considerable number of friends who are inclined to one or another of the several pursuits which have been named, and that thus many of the members may more and more familiarize themselves with what it concerns them most to know of that part of the great heritage where our lot is cast.

A. P. PUTNAM,

Chairman of Executive Committee.
